Blessed Are The Peacemakers . . .

Trooper Island Camp, Inc., a youth camp in south-western Clinton County on Dale Hollow Lake, began the 49th camping season this week for underprivileged and at-risk boys and girls in Kentucky who are chosen by sworn officers to attend a free week of summer camp.

Prior to the start of each camping season, camp officials, Kentucky State Police officers and their families and a host of private citizens gathered at the camp last Saturday for the annual Trooper Island Appreciation Day.

Although the day is billed as a celebration of the start of another camping season, the most solemn gathering during Appreciation Day festivities is the ceremony to pay tribute to the officers who have died in the line of duty.

A new monument was recently completed on the north-west end of the island that holds individual plaques honoring the fallen officers. The monument also features a blue lightbar that will remain glowing at all times as well as an eternal flame that will be projected in a swirling pattern at the rear of the memorial.

In the bottom photo, a front view of the recently completed Fallen Officer Memorial that was built near the Chapel on the northwest end of the camp property.

The construction of the new monument, along with all aspects of Trooper Island Camp operations, is funded solely through private donations.

Operated by the Kentucky State Police, Trooper Island Camp each year gives some 700 underprivileged 10-12 year old youth the opportunity to enjoy a free week of summer camp that they likely wouldn't be able to enjoy otherwise.

The concept behind the camp is to expose those young campers who come from likely "at-risk" environments, to a week of summer camp activities while at the same time, enjoying those activities side by side with sworn officers from the Kentucky State Police.

Jail, budget issues among fiscal court agenda makeup

Clinton County Fiscal Court, meeting in special session last Tuesday afternoon, May 28, dealt with three items of business, including another brief discussion on the jail. But once again, no up or down vote on the opening or closing of the facility was taken in the short session which saw five of six magistrates present.

The court first dealt with deeding a parcel of property in the Clinton County Industrial Park on Hwy. 90 back to the Industrial Development Authority (IDA).

Judge/Executive Lyle Huff said that back in 2006 the IDA had deeded the county and city enough property in the industrial park to construct the current Twin Lakes Wellness Center facility. However, that facility site was switched to its current location near the EMS and Air Evac buildings across from the high school.

The judge told court members that now the Industrial Authority has a "potential industrial client" that may want to locate in the industrial park and the IDA has asked the county and city to revert the property back to that body, since it wasn't used for the intended purpose of the Wellness Center.

Did you know most serious eye diseases have no noticeable symptoms?

For example, glaucoma is a rise in pressure in the eye that can cause permanent blindness if left untreated. However, it doesn't hurt or cause any noticeable vision changes until it is too late.

At Associates in Eye Care, we have a great deal of experience treating glaucoma and other eye diseases.

If you're overdue for a complete eye exam, you shouldn't put it off any longer. Call us today to schedule this very important procedure. To learn more, be sure to visit our website at:

Sienna Staley selected to Rogers Scholars program

Sienna Staley has been named a 2013 Rogers Scholar and will be eligible to receive exclusive scholarship opportunities from 18 colleges and universities.

Staley, a student at Clinton County High School, was selected by The Center for Rural Development to build her leadership and entrepreneurial skills as one of the region's next generation of leaders and entrepreneurs at this summer's Rogers Scholars program.

Staley is the daughter of Jeremy and Alisha Derryberry.

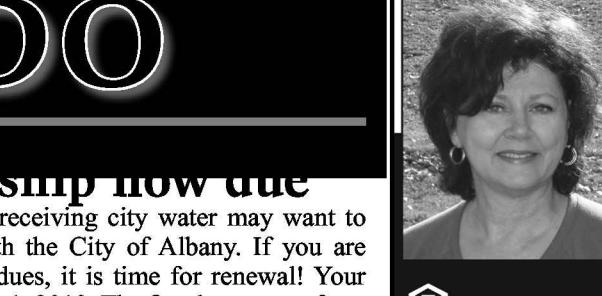

Rogers Scholars, an intensive one-week summer youth leadership program, brings together rising high school juniors from across Southern and Eastern Kentucky for a one-of-a-kind experience that past participants often describe as "life changing."

"The Center believes in giving young people in our region a chance to receive leadership and entrepreneurship training, as well as scholarship opportunities so they can seize their potential to become effective, skilled leaders," Lonnie Lawson, President and CEO of The Center, said. "It is our goal that most of these students will return to Southern and Eastern Kentucky to build their careers and transform this region for years to come."

"The program emphasizes the development of technological skills and builds in participants a sense of leadership, an entrepreneurial spirit, and a commitment to rural Kentucky," Delaney Stephens, Youth Programs Coordinator and Community Liaison for The Center, said.

"We are looking forward to meeting the 2013 Class of Rogers Scholars and working with each participant to develop his or her leadership skills," Stephens added.

During the program, Scholars get to meet and hear presentations from some of the region's top business leaders and entrepreneurs; complete a community service project; and

Clinton jobless rate drops in April

Clinton County's unemployment rate dropped significantly during the most recent reporting span, coming in at 8.9 percent for April, 2013, compared to 10.5 percent the previous month, March, 2013.

The most recent rate was, however, just slightly higher than the local rate for one year ago when Clinton County posted a jobless rate of 8.6 percent, according to the most recent figures released by the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

With a civilian work force of 4,774 in Clinton County, 4,350 were listed as being employed, leaving 424 in the ranks of unemployed for April, 2013.

Other area counties in the Lake Cumberland area, along with the jobless rate for each county, included: Cumberland (10.8), Adair (7.7), Russell (9.7) Pulaski (9.2) and Wayne (10.7).

Unemployment rates decreased in 49 Kentucky counties between April 2012 and April 2013, while 63 county rates rose and eight stayed the same.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 5.4 percent. It was followed by Oldham County, 5.6 percent; Fayette County, 5.9 percent; Ohio and Shelby counties, 6 percent each; Daviess and Scott counties, 6.1 percent each; Franklin and Hancock counties, 6.2 percent each; and Boone, Henderson, Madison and Spencer counties, 6.3 percent.

Magoffin County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate — 16.9 percent. It was followed by Leslie County, 15.8 percent; Fulton County, 15.6 percent; Harlan County, 15.5 percent; Letcher County, 15.3 percent; Bell County, 14.2 percent; Knott County, 14.1 percent; Jackson County, 13.3 percent; Menifee County, 13.1 percent; and McCreary and Perry counties, 12.7 percent each.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

Civilian labor force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work.

They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks.

County

After having had the budget to review the past few weeks, magistrates were officially presented the document for first reading approval by County Treasurer Dallas Sidwell, who told the court it was "practically the same as the current fiscal year budget."

The total budget amounts to $4,884,246.00 with a little over $1.1 million of that amount in the road fund. Other major amount totals are $946,000 in the general fund; $586,000 in the jail fund; $993,000 in the ambulance fund; and $320,000 in the 911 fund.

Magistrate Phillip Parrigin made a motion to approve the budget on first reading, which passed on a 4-1 vote with Magistrate Craig voting no.

In relation to the budget, the court voted, on a motion by Magistrate Hershell Key, to approve the annual standing orders to pay between meeting claims and bills, such as postage, required court member training, grants, billing services, and so forth.

Court members then had another brief discussion on the jail and whether to close the facility or keep it open.

Magistrate Patty Guinn, an advocate of keeping the facility in operation, said, "If you get a hang-nail, are you going to cut your finger off?" apparently referring to the jail's economic problems but questioning whether closing it would solve the problems.

Magistrate Terry Buster then made a motion for the county to take proposals from other jails, especially jails within the immediate area, on costs they would charge for housing local inmates. The motion, which was seconded by Craig, passed 3-2 with Magistrate Key also voting yes and Magistrates Parrigin and Guinn voting no.

Guinn also questioned about situations where there is a local prisoner that another jail simply will not accept for some specific reason.

County Attorney Michael Rains said things like that, such as a right of refusal clause, would have to be addressed with any outside facility in which Clinton County would sign a contract with and indicated that would be an important issue. It was also noted that in most cases, it is up to the respective judge who handled sentencing to make final decisions in certain cases.

No further action regarding the jail was taken last week.

The court then entered into a brief closed session on personnel that lasted just over 10 minutes but took no action upon returning to open session.

The court also held another short call meeting Monday morning of this week, June 3, with only one administrative item of business listed on the agenda, to open bids for road equipment.

Following some discussion, the court voted to purchase two extendible option tractors at $72,841.89 each or a total of $145,687.78 from Wright Equipment Company.

After the meeting was adjourned, however, it was learned those tractors wouldn't be available for delivery until August, more than two-thirds into the mowing season. Court members then unofficially discussed the possibility of revisiting the issue on purchasing the equipment at its next regular meeting later this month.

The next regular meeting of Clinton Fiscal Court is scheduled for June 20 at 5 p.m. at the courthouse and is open to the public.

it. A car show and a softball tournament may occur later in the summer.

For the first fundraiser, however, board members will be taking donations at the entrance of the park on Monday, June 10 and Thursday, June 13 from 4-8 p.m. It is hoped that individuals who will be using the park on these days will make donations toward the new playground equipment.

One hundred percent of the donations collected will be put into a separate account and used toward the playground.

Chairman Ostertag then presented the board with a draft letter that he will be sending to the governing entities (city council, fiscal court, and school board) requesting that they begin their annual reappointment of park board members during their June meetings.

The next regular meeting of the park board is scheduled for June 27 at 5 p.m. at Mountain View Park and is open to the general public.

Mayor Smith indicated that since the site location in the industrial park had not been used for its original purpose, it would be better to deed the property back to the IDA.

The council then entered into an approximate 20-minute executive session to again discuss possible acquisition of property but took no official action upon returning to open session.

The council also held its regular monthly meeting this past Tuesday, June 4 but was too late for press deadline. Details of that meeting will be published in next week's Clinton County News.

Earlier last week, Clinton Fiscal Court took the same action in voting to deed the property in the industrial park back to the Industry.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

Four arrests were made Thursday, May 23, when local officials discovered a meth lab at a residence on Hardwood Drive.

Monticello Police Detective Derek Lester and UNITE Detective Chris Lyon were investigating a discarded meth lab, which was found on Shearer Lane, on Thursday.

In the course of the investigation, they went to the Hardwood Drive residence, where a group of people were standing outside the home.

Inside the home, Lester stated there had been recent meth activity, and the residence still had a strong odor from the lab. He indicated that it was not active when officials arrived.

Arrests made at the scene included: Jamie Southwood Baker, 35, on an indictment for manufacturing methamphetamine and possession of a controlled substance; Michael Shane Bell, 41, manufacturing methamphetamine; Adam Baker, 36, on a bench warrant for failure to appear; and Homer E. Daniels, Jr., 31, on a bench warrant for failure to appear.

Lester indicated that the investigation is continuing and other charges could be filed, pending lab results.

Lester, Lyon and Wayne County Sheriff's Deputy Cody Neal were all checked out by medical personnel because of exposure to the meth lab, but there were no injuries.

Assisting at the scene were the Monticello Fire Department, Wayne County EMS, UNITE, the Monticello Fire Department and the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

School may be out, but it will be a busy summer for Wayne County Schools, as they prepare for the additional students that come with the merge with Monticello School. During a meeting held on Monday, May 20, Superintendent John Dalton provided Wayne County school board members with some of the moving plans scheduled over the next several weeks.

Moving plans have been scheduled, and the first step will be moving Bell Elementary to Monticello Elementary Schools.

After that is completed, moves will begin on the main Wayne County campus, Dalton noted.

"It will be an active summer," he told board members.

The Monticello Police Department has received questions recently regarding telephone solicitations from people claiming to be from Microsoft Windows and requesting access to personal computer accounts.

The police department has attempted to contact the number the solicitor called from and has received the message "not in service."

The police department strongly recommends that no personal data be given out over the telephone or to any person not personally known to you and who has your complete confidence.

Such telephone solicitations are not the way legitimate companies or corporations conduct business and are nearly always some type of fraud.

Anyone who needs more information should contact the Monticello Police Department at (606) 348-9313.

TIMES JOURNAL Russell Springs

One person was charged with several offenses in connection with break-ins at two local businesses last Wednesday night.

Wesley Carter, 23, of Jamestown, was taken into custody around 1:30 p.m. last Thursday, May 23, by Russell Springs Police Department Assistant Chief

THE HERALD CITIZEN Cookeville, TN

A Baxter woman was cited to court on Memorial Day, Monday, May 27, after she left her two kids in the car while she went into a store, police said.

It happened just after 2 p.m. at a store on S. Jefferson Avenue, says a report by Cookeville Police Officer Anthony Nash.

Alinda Elizabeth Conlan, 21, of Partridge Trail, Baxter, was cited in the case, the report says.

Officer Nash said he was dispatched to the store parking lot on a report that "a child was being left unattended in a vehicle."

"Upon arrival, I observed two small children inside a black Nissan Xterra with the engine running in the parking lot in front of the garden center at Walmart," the officer's report continues.

"After waiting approximately 15 minutes, the mother came to the vehicle. I asked Ms. Conlan why she had left the children in the vehicle, and she stated that she only had to run in for a minute and didn't know it was against the law to leave the children in the vehicle."

She also told the officer that she had left the car running and the air conditioning on so the children "didn't get hot," the report says.

One child is an eight-year-old and one is seven months old, the report says.

Conlan has a court date of July 22.

It is the second such case in recent days, police noted.

As summer approaches, officers here make it a point to check store parking lots for children or animals left in vehicles unattended.

The 14-year-old boy who was killed while riding his bicycle on the highway in Smithville on Sunday, May 26 was Jacob Davis Billings, according to sources in DeKalb County.

In releasing information about the accident, the Tennessee Highway Patrol refused to identify the accident victim, citing the fact that he is a juvenile.

According to news outlets in DeKalb County, the victim was Jacob Davis Billings, the son of Trey and Heather Billings of Smithville.

He died of a head injury on Sunday evening, May 26, after being hit by a car while riding his bicycle on Casey Cove Road. He was knocked off the bike and then hit by a pickup truck which was traveling behind the car.

The accident is still under investigation.

According to WJLE Radio in Smithville, Billings had just graduated from 8th grade at DeKalb West School, where he played football, a sport he loved. He had made the DeKalb County High School football team, WJLE said.

In addition to his parents, his family includes two sisters, Jessica and Tori Billings.

A Texas truck driver was robbed in the parking lot of a motel on Sunday night, May 26, police said.

It happened at the Knights Inn motel on Salem Road just after 10 p.m., says a report by Cookeville Police Officer Marc Declaire.

The trucker had just rented a room at the motel and was unloading his gear from the truck at the north side of the building when it happened, he told the officer.

"He said that while he was halfway inside his truck, an unidentified male pushed an object to his back and said, "Give me your money or wallet!"

The victim then handed over his wallet, and the robber snatched the money out of it and took off running, heading north toward Salem Road, the report says. He tossed the wallet away in the parking lot while running.

The victim was able to give only a limited description of the robber. He said the man was wearing dark clothing.

The robber made off with $250.

"This was an aggravated robbery with a firearm (the firearm implied)," the officer noted in the report.

Officers searched the area for the robber, but did not find him. Detectives now have the case.

In another case, a business official working in his office on May 27, a holiday, was apparently a surprise for a burglar who barged in, and the burglar fled upon seeing that someone was there.

It happened at Putnam Properties on N. Washington Avenue, says a report by Officer Ryan Acuff.

The business owner was working in his office when he heard a loud knocking at the door. He stated that he went to answer the door when a white male had shoved his way through the door.

"The door and the frame were broken. He said the suspect saw him and then turned away and ran.

"The suspect fell down as he fled and left behind a blue flat brimmed TAPOUT baseball cap, which I confiscated," the officer wrote in the report.

The intruder was described as a white male in his 30's with shaggy hair, wearing a white shirt, about six feet tall and weighing 180 to 200 pounds, the report says.

He was last seen heading northwest toward Tennessee Tech, the officer said.

"There was nothing stolen from inside the business. Damage to the door and frame was estimated at about $1,000."

Detectives are investigating.

A Crossville woman who stole a car at gunpoint early Wednesday morning, May 28, then led police on a high-speed chase and crashed the car, was shot and killed after she allegedly pointed her gun at officers.

According to the TBI and to DePUTY District Attorney Gary McKenzie, Angela Smith, 37, of Crossville, was shot and killed by gunfire from a police officer's weapon after she threatened officers by pointing a Glock pistol at them.

The shooting took place as the officers approached Smith after she had crashed the stolen vehicle into a tree in the Brownstown Community near the Cumberland/White County line.

It all happened around 2 a.m. Wednesday after a woman called 911 in Cumberland County and reported that her daughter was on drugs and had jumped out of a car near the Camelot subdivision, Deputy DA McKenzie said.

"And shortly after that call, a resident of that subdivision called 911 and reported seeing a person trying to enter a residence there," McKenzie said.

Another call then reported that a woman had entered a home in the subdivision and pointed a gun at the homeowner, took his car keys, stole a vehicle, and drove away in it, McKenzie said.

Crossville police officers and Cumberland County deputies soon spotted the vehicle and pursued it "down Highway 70 toward Sparta," he said.

In the Brownstown Community, the fleeing driver, later identified as Angela Smith, crashed the car into a tree, and officers approached the wrecked car, he said.

Reportedly, one officer used a Taser, but it had no effect on Smith, who was brandishing the gun and pointed it at the officers.

"They fired on her then, and she was killed," McKenzie said.

Some officers are on administrative leave pending the outcome of an investigation by the TBI and a review by the DA's office, he said.

Being placed on leave in such cases is routine procedure in law enforcement agencies, McKenzie said.

The woman's body was sent for an autopsy.

The owner of the home, Bethel Hill, 88, could not be located. Firefighters continued to extinguish the fire which resulted in an explosion of a small propane tank and a pressure release on a large propane tank.

Pickett County Sheriff's Department made contact with family to verify if it was possible Hill had been in the home at the time of the fire. Around 7 a.m., it was confirmed there was a body but it would be some time before an identification could be made.

Along with the Pickett County Sheriff's Department, the undetermined fire is being investigated by the Tennessee Bomb and Arson Squad and Tennessee Bureau of Investigation.

and Cindy Young made a picture-

que setting for the celebration. Small tables spread throughout the garden held photographs and other mementos of the illustrious career of the band. The recently-received award from the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame and the Grammy were displayed. White tents decorated in bright-colored tables spread with delicious refreshments. The aroma of blooming flowers and the sound of Kentucky Headhunter music filled the air.

Edmonton-Metcalf County Chamber of Commerce President Jamie Howard gave the welcoming address and introduced Metcalfe County Judge-Executive Greg Wilson and Edmonton Mayor Howard Garrett who signed a proclamation declaring May 22 The Kentucky Headhunter Day in Edmonton/Metcalf County. Each member of the band was presented with the signed proclamation.

Michael Pape, District Director for Congressman Ed Whitfield, read a proclamation that is recorded in the United States Congressional record honoring The Kentucky Headhunters for their accomplishments.

Kentucky State Representative Bart Rowland, who introduced the bill in the Kentucky Legislature to name KY Highway 640 "The Kentucky Headhunter Highway," made a presentation of the actual bill to each member of the band.

Each presenter spoke of the many accomplishments of the band and the recognition they have brought to the state and the community. Each mentioned what the inspiration and success of this band is to young people to dream big, work hard, and see their dream fulfilled.

Greg Meredith, Chief Engineer for the Kentucky Transportation Department, Bowling Green office, assisted The Kentucky Headhunters in unveiling the road sign at Wisdom. Other signs are on Highway 640 near Summer Shade and Knob Lick.

Richard Young, speaking for the entire band, expressed their appreciation for the years of community support. "We could not have made it this far without all of you."

An investigation is being conducted after a house fire on Cove Creek Road early Tuesday, May 28. Pickett County Volunteer Fire Department was dispatched at around 3 a.m. to 5599 Cove Creek Road where the home was already engulfed with flames.

The owner of the home, Bethel Hill, 88, could not be located.

Firefighters continued to extinguish the fire which resulted in an explosion of a small propane tank and a pressure release on a large propane tank.

SPORTS

Sports in Kentucky

by Bob Watkins

Kelley's Calumet to sun shine on Kentucky football, news flows into June

News and Views.

Sports news, after the Kentucky Derby, becomes a crawl line at bottom of your teevee screen, right?

Wrong!

NEWS. Calumet Farm, the most visible and glorious red and white symbol of horse racing on the planet, valued at more than $40 million, is now under lease to native Kentuckian Brad Kelley.

VIEW. How perfect. Calumet in hands of a conservationist who grew up near Franklin, owns two horse farms in central Kentucky and thousands of acres in states across America kept safe from developers. That Kelley has no appetite for glad-hand celebrity, shuns crowds and publicity, make him an icon to me, the anti-thesis of, say fellow Fayette resident John Calipari. Another thing: Kelley's racing colors, black and gold. Perfect.

NEWS. Southeastern Conference directors of athletics met in Destin, Florida last week and voted unanimously to "authorize the conference to explore a primary site for the men's basketball tournament."

Favorite: Nashville.

VIEW. Hardly the heart of the SEC, Nashville has two large pluses.

1. Bridgestone Arena seats 19,395 for basketball.

2. It's close enough to keep Big Blue Nation coming to spend money and far enough from Lexington to keep pundits from dubbing it the UKIT.

The SEC Tournament is already set for Nashville in 2015, 2016 and 2019. Sites for 2017 and 2018 remain open.

NEWS. Eddie Sutton, the ex-Kentucky coach (1985-89) whose photo was left out of coaches section in UK's basketball media guide for several years, has been invited to visit Lexington, attend UK practices by John Calipari.

VIEW. Yes. An invitation overdue. Sutton's teams contributed 88 wins to the nation's winning program. He is 77, has wrestled with personal demons, and lost his wife last year. And, Eddie Sutton is hardly the only UK coach on whose watch NCAA probation came. He simply didn't have the same layer of teflon as others.

NEWS. The NBA fined Roy Hibbert $75,000 last week for a gay slur.

VIEW. 75 grand seems a steep price to pay, but somebody in the NBA had to be a first sacrificial lamb to the new no-no since Jason Collins reset the bar for political correctness. However, Hibbert's check won't be in the mail until the NBA players union has its say.

NEWS. Latest NBA mock draft projects Ben McLemore going first to Cleveland, Kentucky's Nerlens Noel to Orlando second, Louisville's Gorgui Deng projects No. 22 to Brooklyn; Murray State's Isaiah Canaan at No. 34 to Houston; UK's Archie Goodwin No. 40 to Portland; and UofL's Peyton Siva at 55th to Memphis.

VIEW. Noel is three seasons and 30 pounds away from being more than a shot blocker who can no longer be pushed around alot.

VIEW II. Two 'steals' in the draft? Canaan and Siva.

• Canaan can shoot, but more, he knows how to score. Unselfish, a leader and clever defender.

• Siva is more than a penetrator and deft passer. He will contribute to locker room harmony and be a fan favorite.

The NBA Draft begins Thursday, June 27.

NEWS. Winston Bennett was let go as basketball coach at NAIA Mid-Continent University in Mayfield this week. His teams were 73-89, 2007-2013.

VIEW. An enigma is Bennett. Reached the heights - Kentucky Mr. Basketball 1983 to All-SEC at UK, a professional career in NBA and overseas, and coached at NBA and college levels. Yet, he sank to a personal bottom also.

I hope Bennett, now 48, finds his niche, a comfort zone and peace, maybe away from basketball.

NEWS. Best basketball towns in America? Internet site Bleacher Report says Durham, North Carolina, Lawrence, Kansas and Chapel Hill are 1-2-3. Here in the Hoops Triangle, Lexington and Bloomington are 4-5, Louisville ranks eighth.

Why Durham is One? BR says, "Teams: A-plus; Duke is in the select group of programs synonymous with college basketball; Fans: A-plus. Cameron Crazies are nation's most famous spectators. And, competition: A-plus."

VIEW. Incredibly the foundation for Duke's supremacy went unmentioned. Mike Krzyzewski is winningest ball coach in the sport.

NEWS. No. 101. Mark Stoops' Kentucky team is No. 101 for 2013 football season, says USA Today. But the sun is going to shine bright on the bluegrass according to writer Paul Myersberg.

"Mark Stoops has the whole state abuzz due to February's rock-solid recruiting class, that has carried over into a torrid start in the class of 2014.

His conclusion: Reinforcements are coming. Batten down the hatches. Could Stoops and UK actually, win big?"

VIEW. Stoops landed his tenth commit last Sunday and there is sunny optimism. But there is also that nation's toughest, 2013 schedule coming up.

WORTH REPEATING DEPT.

A few weeks ago on the way to a game, members of Union County High's girls softball team were injured in a bus crash.

Kevin Patton writes about people in sports for The Gleaner in Henderson.

While recent news had not been good for the softball team, Patton wrote, "reaction to it was. Livingston Central's softball team, which was the scheduled opponent the afternoon Union County's bus ran off the road and turned over on its side, went to Paducah hospitals to show their support for the injured Union County players.

"As a way of saying thank you, Union County's team traveled to Trigg County to support Livingston Central in the first round of the Fifth District Tournament.

"The outpouring of support for the Union County team reminds us of what is right about high school sports. It's not about winning and losing. It's about competition and the relationships developed from that competition."

Comment: Good to have someone to recognize and chronicle these things also.

And so it goes.

Public urged to leave young wildlife alone

They are born in woods and brushy fields. From birth, they learn how to survive in a world where the daily challenge is to find enough to eat and try not to be eaten by other wild creatures.

For eons, wildlife have been born and raised without human surrogate parents. So the message is clear: leave wildlife babies alone.

Well-intentioned concern often does more harm than good.

Get too close to a bird's nest and the young may leave the nest prematurely and not survive. Bring home a deer fawn and you're taking it away from its mother. Feed a bear cub and the cub will become conditioned to humans and human food.

All these scenarios are likely to compromise the animal's survival chances.

Only licensed wildlife rehabilitators may possess injured or orphaned wildlife. Only persons with a captive cervid permit may keep deer in captivity.

A little slack time - sports wise

School is out, the final baseball and softball games have been played, and even some of the instructional camps are behind us (the Lady Dawgs camp was cancelled last week due to a scheduling conflict).

So, what's next for our local high school athletes.

A little break - but not much.

Up next, of course, will be our lineup fall sports, although for the most part, the use of "fall" is somewhat of a stretch. It's still pretty much summer weather when golf, soccer, volleyball and even football first see the season's start.

But, back to the short break - expect to see our fall sport athletes get into official practice for team play on July 15. Of course in the meantime, there will be team instructional camps as well as individual work and conditioning.

Football Boosters to meet

The Gridiron Bulldog season will be here before we know it, and planning never ends.

Along those lines, Trish Miller, the wife of Bulldog head coach Jamie Miller, noted this week that the Football Boosters will be meeting next Tuesday night, June 11, at 5:00 p.m.

The meetings are held each second Tuesday night of the month, in the blue building just behind (to the west) of Bulldog field, and being a part of the Football Boosters isn't just for parents - all fans are welcome to become part of the program.

KHSAA Wall of Fame picks from close to home

A well-known area basketball standout has been honored by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

Don Frye, a standout graduate from the now closed Monticello High School, will be inducted into the KHSAA Hall of Fame next April.

Frye finished his career with the Trojans in 1960 after helping lead Monticello to three trips to the Sweet 16. He received a basketball scholarship to the University of Colorado, but later transferred to Furman University.

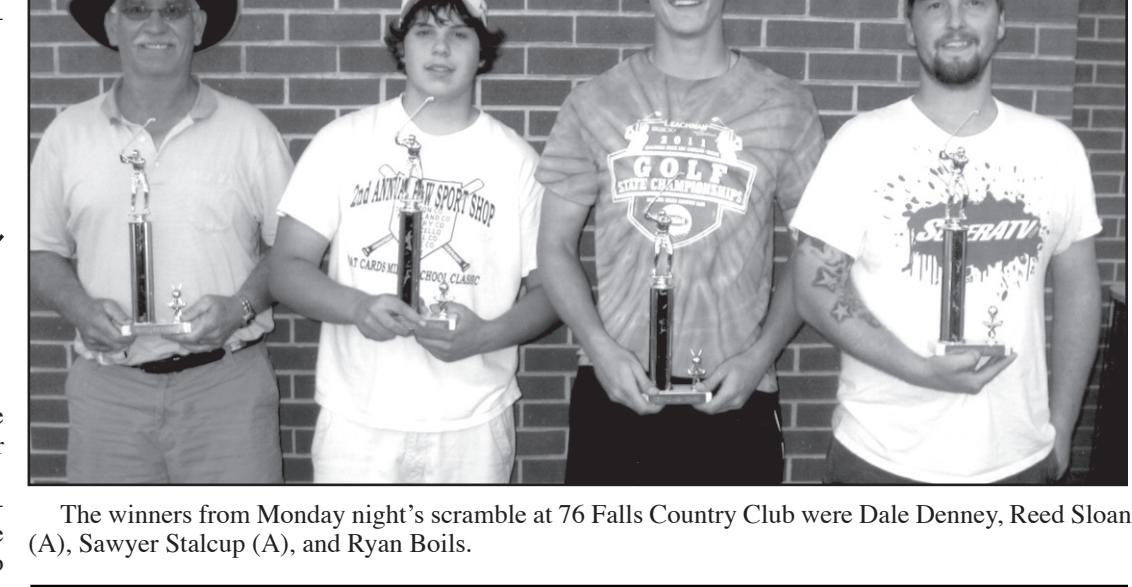

He scored 1,751 points during his career at Monticello, playing for "Jumping Joe" Harper, who was also inducted (posthumously) into the KHSAA Hall of fame several years ago.

Another of the 11 inductees into the next Hall of Fame class is Lexington Herald Leader sports reporter Mike Fields. Mike and I aren't personal friends, but we have shared several email notes down through the past years involving various high school sports related issues.

In my opinion, Mike is the finest high school sports reporter to work in this Bluegrass state in many, many years.

Congrats to both.

Dyer trial once again continued in Clinton Circuit Court

Another continuance has been granted in the Ira Boles Dyer, III case in Clinton Circuit Court.

During a session conducted on Monday, May 20 before Circuit Judge David Williams, a motion was granted for continuance of his trial and is now scheduled for a two-day period, September 4-5, 2013.

The defendant is charged with murder, wanton endanger, persistent felony offender and some misdemeanor traffic related offenses in connection with an April 2011 auto accident that claimed the life of an elderly Clinton County woman and caused injuries to other persons involved in the two-vehicle accident that occurred on North Highway 127 in Clinton County. Ina Edwards, 79, was killed in the accident.

A few months later, Dyer was charged with murder and wanton endanger and several months after those indictments were returned, a charge of operating a motor vehicle under the influence, in relation to the accident was brought by Kentucky State Police, with Trooper Andy Olson being the lead investigator.

The trial date has been delayed on various occasions, including during a pretrial conference on May 6 when the trial was rescheduled for August 14. The next trial date is just three weeks beyond that date.

Several other cases were on the docket in circuit court on May 20 and the following are those which resulted in some type of resolution or trial dates being scheduled:

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. David E. Faught.

The Commonwealth recommended dismissing the charge of obscuring the identity of a machine or other property (two counts). Upon a plea of guilty to receiving stolen property under $10,000 and unlawful possession of a methamphetamine precursor, the defendant would receive a sentence of five years each to run concurrent for five years. He would serve 60 days home incarceration with the balance probated for five years with supervision.

Final sentencing was scheduled for July 1.

* During motion hour, in the case of Commonwealth vs. Leigh-Ann Little Hicks, counsel for the defendant advised the court that after reviewing the KCPC report, he wished to withdraw his motion for a competency hearing. The court sustained the motion and concluded the defendant had violated the terms and conditions of her probation and revoked same. The defendant was ordered to serve the balance of a 10-year sentence with credit for any time already served.

The defendant had originally been charged with multiple counts of possession of a forged instrument and second degree forgery.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Billy Kennedy, the court concluded the defendant had violated the terms and conditions of his pretrial diversion by being terminated.

A small fire broke out Monday afternoon in the bathroom of the new tattoo shop, Studio 60, located on Cross Street and situated between the Cornerstone Restaurant and the Polka-Dot Shop.

The fire, according to Albany Fire Chief Robert Roeper, started in a trash can, apparently from a cigarette that had been placed there. Roeper said there was no structural damage to the building or the buildings surrounding it, however, smoke quickly filled up both the Cornerstone Restaurant and the Polka-Dot Shop located on both sides of the tattoo parlor.

"Two walls in the bathroom were pretty burnt, but other than that, just some smoke damage to the other buildings was the only damage that occurred," Roeper said.

No one was injured in the fire and the fire was extinguished quickly after the call came in at 1 p.m. Monday afternoon.

In the top photo, Albany Fire Department personnel arrived on the scene as owners and patrons from neighboring businesses watch from the sidewalk. At left, fire department personnel set up a large exhaust fan in front of Studio 60 to remove smoke from the business.

Prevention key to managing blueberry root rot

By Katie Pratt

Fruit growers are often attracted to blueberry production because the plants have few disease problems. However one disease, Phytophthora root rot, can completely decimate blueberry plants. This spring, agents and specialists with the UK Cooperative Extension Service have seen widespread cases of the disease across the state.

Phytophthora root rot, also called blueberry root rot, is caused by a soilborne water mold. This fungus-like pathogen is found worldwide and can affect a wide range of plants.

The root rot pathogen attacks plant roots and limits water uptake, which ultimately stunts plant growth and kills existing leaves and buds. While the first symptoms appear as lesions on roots, growers likely will not know they have a problem until plant leaves begin to turn yellow or red. As disease progresses, leaves will then turn brown. Blueberry root rot can eventually result in defoliation, branch dieback and plant death.

Fortunately, growers can largely prevent this disease with proper management practices, said Gauthier and Brandon Bell, Metcalfe County agricultural and natural resources extension agent. They encourage growers to inspect the plants for disease before planting, select a site with well-drained soil and plant blueberries into raised beds at least one foot high to improve drainage.

Pass the potassium please

Source: Ingrid Adams, UK assistant extension professor for nutrition and weight management

Two out of three American adults have hypertension or prehypertension, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Hypertension, or high blood pressure, increases your risk for heart disease and stroke, the two leading causes of death in America. Fortunately, most cases of high blood pressure can be improved or prevented through diet changes.

Most of our diets are too high in sodium and too low in potassium. Too much sodium in your diet increases your risk of developing high blood pressure. The average American consumes nearly 50 percent more sodium than they need each day. A diet that is high in potassium can lower your risk of developing hypertension, especially for those who are sensitive to sodium. High potassium foods help prevent or lower high blood pressure as they cause the kidneys to get rid of excess sodium in the body.

You can find potassium in a variety of fruits, vegetables, meats and dairy products. Good sources of potassium include, but are not limited to, small baked potatoes and sweet potatoes, spinach, carrots, bananas, dried apricots, poultry, fish, milk and soy products.

Besides reducing high blood pressure risks, potassium has several other benefits including maintaining your body's water balance, helping build muscles, maintaining normal growth as we age, and helping your body digest carbohydrates, which helps control your blood sugar levels.

For more information on incorporating more potassium in your diet, contact the Clinton County office of the UK Cooperative Extension Service.

Educational programs of the Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

John Wayne dies

June 11, 1979

John Wayne, the iconic American film actor, died on this day in 1979 at age 72 after battling cancer for more than a decade.

He was born Marion Morrison on May 26, 1907, in Winterset, Iowa, and moved as a child to Glendale, California. His father, Clyde Leonard Morrison worked as a pharmacist there and was the son of American Civil War veteran Marion Mitchell Morrison. Wayne's mother, Mary "Molly" Alberta Brown was from Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Wayne was a football star at Glendale High School and attended the University of Southern California on a scholarship, but dropped out after two years because he had injured himself in a surfing accident. With funding gone, Wayne had to leave the university and his pre-law major behind.

After finding work as a movie studio laborer, Wayne befriended director John Ford, then a rising talent. His first acting jobs were small parts in which he was credited as Duke Morrison, a childhood nickname derived from the name of his beloved Airedale Terrier "Duke." A local fireman at a station on his route to school started calling him "Little Duke" because he never went anywhere without his K-9 companion.

Wayne rose beyond the typical recognition for a famous actor to that of an enduring icon who symbolized and communicated American values and ideals. By the middle of his career, Wayne had developed a larger-than-life image, and as his career progressed, he selected roles that would not compromise his off-screen image. By the time of his last film "The Shootist" in 1976, Wayne refused to allow his character to shoot a man in the back as was originally scripted, saying "I've made over 250 pictures and have never shot a guy in the back. Change it."

Wayne's rise to being the quintessential movie war hero began to take shape four years after World War II, when Sands of Iwo Jima (1949) was released. His footprints at Grauman's Chinese theater in Hollywood were laid in concrete that contained sand from Iwo Jima.

Throughout most of his life, Wayne was a vocally prominent conservative Republican. Initially a self-described socialist during his college years, he voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1936 presidential election and expressed admiration for Roosevelt's successor, fellow Democratic President Harry Truman. He supported Vice President Richard Nixon in the 1960 presidential election, but expressed his vision of patriotism when John Kennedy won the election: "I didn't vote for him, but he's my president, and I hope he does a good job." An ardent anti-communist and vocal supporter of the House Un-American Activities Committee, in 1952 he made Big Jim McLain to show his support for the anti-communist cause. Recently declassified Soviet documents reveal that despite being a fan of Wayne's movies, Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin ordered Wayne's assassination as a result of his frequently espoused anti-communist politics.

Married three times, Wayne was the father of seven children. Several of his children entered the film and television industry - his son Ethan was billed as John Ethan Wayne in a few films, and played one of the leads in the 1990s update of the Adam - 12 television series. Michael was a producer and Patrick starred in over 40 films, including nine with his father.

John Wayne is buried in Pacific View Memorial Park Cemetery in Corona del Mar. Unmarked for twenty years, his stone now reads "Tomorrow is the most important thing in life. Comes into us at midnight very clean. It's perfect when it arrives and it puts itself in our hands. It hopes we've learned something from yesterday."

Anne Frank receives a diary

June 12, 1942

On this day, Anne Frank, a young Jewish girl living in Amsterdam, receives a diary for her 13th birthday. A month later, she and her family went into hiding from the Nazis in rooms behind her father's office. For two years, the Franks and four other families hid, fed and cared for by Gentile friends. The families were discovered by the Gestapo, which had been tipped off, in 1944. The Franks were taken to Auschwitz, where Anne's mother died. Friends in Amsterdam searched the rooms and found Anne's diary hidden away.

Anne and her sister were transferred to another camp, where Anne died of typhus a month before the war ended. Anne's father survived Auschwitz and published Anne's diary in 1947 as The Diary of a Young Girl. The book has been translated into more than 60 languages.

Repair work on streets started Tuesday

The R. E. Gaddie Co., of Bowling Green, Ky., started work Tuesday on repairing the streets which were damaged when the sewer system was installed. According to N. S. Barrass, superintendent of construction, the work is expected to be completed in a few days.

Kentucky Facts and Trivia

The Lost River Cave in Bowling Green, Kentucky includes a cave with the shortest and deepest underground river in the world. It contains the largest cave opening east of the Mississippi. The cave is seven miles and is located on 69 acres of property owned by Western Kentucky University. Visitors have been taking boat tours through certain portions of the cave since 1998. It is the only underground boat tour offered in Kentucky and also offers many other activities along with the boat tour.

Lost River Cave began as a safe and plentiful source of food, water, and shelter. Evidence of such use has been uncovered by archaeologists at WKU. The cultural artifacts discovered by these experts tell the story of Kentucky's earliest inhabitants and Lost River's place in their lives. Anthropologist Dr. Jack Schock believes prehistoric Kentucky tribes camped at Lost River Cave in the winter, enjoying shelter from the cave as well as clean water from the blue hole. These native groups enjoyed a period of occupation from about 8,000 B.C. until around 1,000 B.C.

The cave mills at Lost River Cave are connections to the 19th century commercial and agricultural development of Warren County. There are many conflicting reports on the construction of the first mill, but some undocumented 20th century reports state that it was built in 1792 as a corn and saw mill. Other accounts place the construction of the first flour mill in Warren County much later. There seems to have been several mills with different operators and production goals throughout the 19th century. There is enough factual documentation to show that the mill was in operation by 1823 and continued until at least 1847 when it was maintained as a grist mill and wool carding machine. The last mill at Lost River was destroyed by fire in 1915.

Both Union and Confederate troops used Lost River as a camp site for its natural water supply and the beauty of the cave provided a diversion from the ugliness of war. Soldiers crawled through the underground network of passages and wrote their names, ranks, and companies on the ceilings and walls of the cave. They even fired their guns inside to hear the echoes, leaving behind their bullets for historic archaeologists to find more than a century later.

In the 1930s, a new and exciting way of using the cave came to light - a nightclub, complete with stage, bar, and dance floor was built inside the mouth of the Lost River Cave. It was a way to relieve the pressure of the Great Depression and was an ideal spot for the construction of a unique wining, dining, and dancing experience. Church picnics, weddings, and high school proms were held at the night club from 1934 through the early 1960s, and some of the greatest swing band acts of the time belted out tunes from the grandstand. In the late 1950s, the night club era was dead and with the construction of I-65 re-routing traffic away from the cave, the cool, natural breeze in the entrance was less enticing to a generation that had air conditioning in their homes and Elvis was replacing swing music with rock and roll.

After the nightclub closed, the Lost River Cave entered a time of neglect and abuse. For more than 30 years, Bowling Green forgot about its historic and natural gem. By the 1980s, Lost River Cave had become a dumping site. In an effort to return the site to its former glory, the Friends of Lost River formed in 1990.

Lost River Cave is located at 2818 Nashville Road in Bowling Green and offers tours Monday through Sunday from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. each night. For more information call 270-393-0077.
